Petition will seek river speed limit

At least one resident on the shores of the Gull River in Minden is upset with the speed of passing boats and he is attempting to do something about it.

Don Davidson, nephew of Miss Edith Smith, owner and operator of the Minden Pine Cabins, is starting a petition seeking a slower speed limit on the river. According to Davidson, at the moment there is no speed limit in the area of the Minden Pines and the wash created by passing boats is causing erosion along the banks.

"I understand there is a six knot limit near the bridge in town," he stated, "but I have never seen a sign indicating that." The Minden Pines resort is located downstream from the bridge on Orde Street.

Noting that Orde Street parallels the river from the Minden Pines to the bridge, Davidson says he has clocked boats in the river by driving along the road and found some to be exceeding forty miles per hour.

He says the riverbank in front of the cabins at the resort has eroded six feet since 1949. "There is a log which we use to measure the distance by," he said. "In 1949 I used to stand on the log to fish in the river. At that time it was on dry land. Now that log is surrounded by water and more than five feet from the shore."

Davidson said the current of the river has been responsible for some erosion along the bank, but that the main culprit appears to be the waves from boats travelling too fast on the river.

In addition to the wash, he notes the speeding boats pose a hazard to other boaters, particularly those in canoes, and to swimmers. Davidson pointed out that the river is a winding one and drivers do not always have a clear view around the corners. "We have young people at our place all the time and they are always in the water. One of these times when a speeding boat passes it could be just too late," he comments.

Davidson said permission is always needed from government authorities to place fill along the river bank. "We can't backfill unless we get permission and if we don't do it, we'll continue to lose our property."

Davidson said other river-side residents have been experiencing the same problems, even those who have spent a great deal of money to have retaining walls installed. He will be taking the petition to these people and all others along the river in the immediate Minden area to have the speed restriction imposed.

Hockey team future still up in the air

If enough interest can be generated among players in Haliburton County, it appears there may be an Intermediate C hockey team based in Minden this coming season.

That was the outcome of a meeting Thursday evening which saw the appointment of an interim executive for the team and approval for formal application to be made to the league officials for the team's acceptance.

The meeting was attended by little more than a dozen individuals, but many of those indicated that they knew of others in the community who were interested in the proposal. The suggestion that a team be formed here has been put forward by the Minden Minor Hockey Association. However, association spokesman Tom Russell said the organization only wished to act as a 'catalyst' in getting the intermediate squad off the ground. He said once that the team was formed it would operate on its own, although he said ice time could be booked at the local arena through the minor hockey organization.

Dave Willis, who indicated at the meeting that he was willing to provide a certain amount of financial support for the team, was named the interim president of the organization. Roger Dart will serve as the secretary-treasurer.

It was pointed out that the date for acceptance of teams in the league had already passed but that league officials were willing to allow a late entry from Minden if a team could be formed.

The minor hockey executive said they would be willing to put forward the registration money, $240 in all, to get the team on the books, as long as the money was returned once the team became operational.

Six team league

If accepted, the intermediate entry would be playing in a six team league encompassing the communities of Bobcaygeon, Beaverton, Cannington, Little Britain and Ops as well as the Minden entry. Since the team would be the only intermediate squad in the county, it would

Farmers plan open house

"Basically, what we're doing as farmers, is extending an invitation to our neighbours in the county to come out and see that agriculture is alive and thriving in Haliburton County."

Those words are the description by Bud Kirchner of the event planned this Sunday for his farm.

Organized by the Haliburton County Farmers' Association, an open house has been planned to give everyone an opportunity to see what happens on a farm and how agriculture is contributing to the economy of the county.

"There are many people who are totally unaware that agriculture is being carried on here," Kirchner commented. "They think it is dead. In fact, farm products of all varieties are being produced and sold in this county."

Visitors to the Kirchner farm will have an opportunity to view the many pieces of farm equipment used in the daily operation, see a milk herd, horses, chickens, gardens and more. Members of the county association will also be on hand to discuss farming with the visitors.

The open house will take place Sunday from 10 in the morning to 2 in the afternoon, rain or shine. Bud advises that since his operation is a working farm, visitors would be well advised to wear boots, no matter what the weather. He also requested that visitors do not bring pets with them.

"We hope as many people as possible in the county can take advantage of this open house," Bud commented. "We think agriculture is important to the county and would like to prove it to everyone who doubts us."

The Kirchner farm is located on the Irish Line, which runs off Highway 530, halfway between Carnarvon and Haliburton.

Firemen pour water through the shattered window of the Haliburton Marine store on Highway 121 at Haliburton Tuesday afternoon. The blaze, which is believed to have started in the basement, filled the structure with dense smoke. A contingent of firefighters from Minden was called to assist the Dysart et al department in fighting the blaze. No estimate of damage was available at press time, but the building contained a large number of boats, motors, snowmobiles and accessories. Smoke and water damage is expected to be heavy.

be able to draw players from outside the immediate Minden area.

The proximity of the communities which the team would compete against was a major positive factor as far as a number of individuals in attendance were concerned. They noted that travel expenses were one of the main financial hurdles to be overcome.

One individual described the league as "highly competitive, tough but not dirty."

The team would play a 20 to 30 game schedule beginning in early November.

Willis said after being appointed president that all eligible players would be welcome to try out for the team. However, the new president said the team executive would require a commitment from the players. "We want players who are willing to spend the entire year with the team," he commented.

Efforts to organize the team are expected to continue during the next few weeks with an eye to beginning practices in mid-September.

Limit needed

We endorse the action being undertaken by one resident of the Minden area to bring some control on the speed power boats travel.

His action is prompted by concern over the damage done by the wake thrown up by the passing boats. While that point may appear to be an individual problem, constant erosion of the river shore will do little to enhance the river's environment.

More importantly, as far as the community as a whole is concerned, is the danger created by speeding boats. The Gull River is a scenic waterway with many twists and turns. While these add to the beauty of the river, they also create potential hazards.

Canoeists or swimmers can often be hidden by the twisting nature of the river.

Power boats, travelling at high speed, are difficult to manoeuvre and hard to bring to a stop quickly. In those areas where the bends in the river create hazardous conditions or where erosion is becoming a serious problem, a reasonable speed limit should be enforced.

Grim statistics

There is little doubt the Highlands of Haliburton has become a popular destination for individuals escaping the urban areas of the province. This fact is reflected in the growing number of people who have purchased or built cottages in this area, by the increased tempo of life during the summer months and by the grim statistics released each week by Ontario Provincial Police.

This week and last were two such weeks. The police reports, prepared for distribution to area media, stretched to two pages. In the winter, the OPP often have difficulty in filling one half page.

While an increase in population is bound to result in a proportional increase in traffic numbers, we can't help but feel the destruction on our highways at the height of the summer surpassed what would normally occur. Perhaps it is the result of a more relaxed attitude by those on vacation or inexperience with the less than full-width roads. Certainly excessive speed plays a big part in most of the accidents we report on these pages.

Greater care on unfamiliar roads and reduced speed would go a long way to reducing the grim reports issued by the OPP each summer.

Buddhist monastery offers glimpse of China's past

Patrick Daniel is a summer resident in the Highlands and a former New Democratic Party candidate in the riding of Victoria-Haliburton. He is currently finishing a year in China as an expert in English Language studies at the Shandong Teacher's College.

Mr. Daniel has prepared a number of articles on life in China for The Times. This is the third in a series.

On the evening of May 23rd the closing ceremonies of the Jinan Women's Basketball Invitation Tournament were held in the city of Jinan in China. Seven teams participated in this ten day tournament in this capital city of Shandong Province.

The Canadian National Team - twelve young women athletes from across Canada - made a good showing. They had a one point loss to the Chinese National Team, a narrow victory over Rumania, and, on the last evening, an easy win against Australia. Their over-all standing was third - the bronze medal. The silver went to Rumania, and the gold to the Chinese National Team.

The next morning we travelled into another world - from basketball in a modern sports hall, with the television cameras rolling ten feet from where we sat - to the Ling Yan Buddhist monastery nestled in the hills south of Jinan.

The college minibus took us there, a group of ten Chinese, Japanese and Canadians. After thirty minutes one of the group alighted in a small village to visit his wife and child who stay with the wife's parents while he lives and works in Jinan. This is a pattern - split couples - that is repeated by the thousands all over China, because of the shortage of housing in the cities.

The rest of us continued south on the provincial highway, the driver honking his horn energetically to scatter the pedestrians and bicyclists who crowd every road in China. It was 8 a.m. on a Sunday - morning, and the peasants were already moving out to the fields for the day's work.

We saw the fields of wheat ready for harvest, somewhat shrivelled and stunted by the drought - only one rainfall here in the previous three months. We saw the small fields where the wheat was already being cut - by hand. We saw the irrigation ditches which criss-cross the landscape, with pumps pushing water out to the fields, and peasants, old and young, tending the narrow ditches to prevent obstructions and to check the flow of water. These ditches sometimes do double duty as places for washing clothes, too.

Then the minibus turned onto a gravel road, like the Blairhampton Road in Haliburton - and threaded its way up into the hills.

The Ling Yan temple was first established 1600 years ago as a Buddhist holy place by a monk who had been to India. It has been destroyed and rebuilt several times since then, and the present buildings are of varying ages. At one time there were 1000 Buddhist monks living here.

From the outside, the most dramatic structure is the nine-storey pados which soars above the stunted cedars on the slopes of the hill; it was built in the Tang Dynasty almost 1000 years ago.

On the inside, the most interesting building is the temple of the 1000 Buddhas. It is rectangular in shape, about 50 feet by 150 feet, with a large Buddha in the middle of the hall, facing the entrance. Around the outside walls under the eaves and facing the central figure, are seated the 1000 miniature Buddhas, and below them another 40 life-size Buddhas in different poses, as if they were taking part in a meeting or a study session. They are made of wood and plaster, with an iron core to give some stability; and they are painted in bright colours of red and blue and gold. Unfortunately the wood and glass cupboards which have been built to protect them, the layers of dust, and the lack of light all serve to lower the dramatic effect which they must have had at one time.

Then there's the house of the nineteenth century war lord who found this a pleasant spot to enjoy life in the country. It is not likely that he treated the local peasants very well; the warlords were one of the curses of this country even into the 1930's.

There were Buddhist monks here until "liberation" - October 1, 1949 - and since that time the site has intermittently been open to visitors as a national monument. It did not suffer as much as some other religious shrines during the Cultural Revolution (1966-1976) because there was

For the thousands of Canadians that annually trundle across the nation to the mountains and the sea, the flatlands of Saskatchewan often seem little more than an obstacle. But if you forsake the shimmering heat of the Trans-Canada, and poke around instead among the small towns and back roads of Canada's land-locked province, the fascination of the prairies soon gets a toe-hold in your imagination.

That fascination is reason enough for the establishment of Canada's newest national park - an area to be known as Grasslands, snuggled against the American border south of Swift Current. With the signing of an agreement between the Saskatchewan government and Parks Canada this June, the first Canadian park specifically designed to protect a remnant of the original short-grass prairie was created.

The 330 square miles that will be Grasslands have never been broken by the plough, unlike most of the remaining prairie. This is the home of the pronghorn antelope and the sage grouse, the prickly pear cactus and the short grasses that have adapted to survive drought, high winds, and scorching sun. It is the home also of endangered wildlife such as the prairie falcon, the burrowing owl that rests underground in abandoned gopher holes, and the black-tailed prairie dog, whose colonies along the Frenchman River are unique in Canada.

The prairie landscape is not all flat, either. The rolling landscape contains areas of bedlands, created by wind erosion, that harbour the fossil remains of dinosaurs. The park even contains a "sinking hill", a fault-like depression now 35 feet deep and sinking at a rate of a foot per year.

It will be several years before Grasslands is fully operational, since land must be bought and oil and gas exploration completed. Until then, the Prairie Wildlife Interpretive Centre, just to the north of Swift Current, will preview these features. With such an array of landforms and near-vanished wildlife and habitat, Grasslands will be well worth the long wait for its creation.

Recognize achievements speaker advises parents

Parents of disabled children should try to realize the improvement their children make over the years and not be pessimistic about how far they have to go.

That was the message Doreen Kronick gave when she spoke last Thursday at the meeting of the Haliburton Chapter of the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities. The meeting was held at Tallpines summer camp in Carnarvon.

For several years, Kronick and her husband operated Camp Towhee for learning disabled children. Now, besides being on staff at York University in Toronto, Doreen runs Camp White Pine with her husband.

She said one of the things people have to realize about learning disabled children is that they lack the organizational skills most people take for granted.

"These kids lack strategies," she said. "They have trouble understanding systems, sometimes their talk is disorganized or they don't know how to organize their time properly."

A child who has difficulty communicating or seems confused in his or her actions may be learning disabled, she said.

Doreen was quick to point out learning disabilities are not limited to children. Adults also may have a problem, but once they reach adulthood it is easier to disguise the disability. For example, she said, a businessman who spells poorly, hires a competent secretary who can smooth over his mistakes.

She also said she was skeptical of educators who say there is no such thing as a learning disabled child.

Strengths and weaknesses

"Teachers should look at the strengths and weaknesses in a child," said Doreen. "If teachers took these into account, there might be fewer problems."

She talked about the difference between a child's development and a possible disability. She said teachers must understand this difference if they are going to be able to help the child.

Doreen warned parents not to jump on the bandwagon when it comes to "cures" for their children's disabilities. Stimulants, drugs or various kinds of food won't work for everyone, she said. If it worked for one child, it might not work for another.

"It's very important that parents shouldn't believe the generalizations about the disabled," said Doreen. "For example, some studies show criminals to be learning disabled but that doesn't mean all the learning disabled are criminals."

She said the term "learning disabled" is a fairly new one which started to be used about 1964. Parents should try to see the strides that have been made since then in the field.

She said the educational system is too rigid in some cases because it stresses the academic skills while sometimes ignoring the other aspects of school life.

"One question I always ask teachers is what they remember about their school experience," explained Doreen. "Most people remember the social activities."

She said the lesson to be learned is that teachers have to realize the difference between the content and production in a child's work.

"It's a matter of distinguishing between the child's understanding and showing how they understand," said Doreen.

She said some children can say how they understand easier than they can demonstrate their ability.

Doreen also talked about the way labels can be a method of communicating but can also be a misused tool.

"I think there would be more problems if we didn't have labels," she said. "This way, it helps tell parents where their kids are."

But sometimes labelling is different from teasing and parents should try to be sensitive to a child's feelings at being teased, she said.

"Don't give in to it," explains Doreen. "Try to ignore it but at the same time share with the child what it's like to be teased. Encourage them to befriend someone with whom they can have a solid relationship and to whom they can go for some kind of solace."

Doreen Kronick cares about children and it was evident in the way she spoke at the meeting and the way the parents there responded.

They were eager to hear how they can deal with and help their learning disabled children. They want to understand as much as a child wants to learn.

Doreen Kronick spoke to parents Thursday at Camp Tallpines.

an army garrison close by to protect it to some extent from the vandals who ransacked other cultural objects during those ten bad years of disorder and near-chaos.

The Chinese government takes an interest in the cultural heritage of old China. Gradually the interesting sites are being re-opened to foreigners. This one, the Ling Yan monastery complex, was re-opened about two years ago because it has such a long and important part in the story of Buddhism in China. At one time it was one of the four greatest temples in China. At another time it sheltered Japanese monks who studies here as part of the interchange of the Buddhist religion between China and Japan.

The Ling Yan monastery reminds the onlooker of the fact that, despite the turmoil and political upheavals of this century, China's cultural roots are deep in the past. Even today in a political system which is officially opposed to religion, in many areas of their lives the Chinese draw their ideas and their customs from these ancient cultural and religious roots.

Car theft

Two young thieves were involved in an accident after the car they were driving went over an embankment on a private road at Camp Northland.

Early last Wednesday morning Barry Johnathan Gork, 17, of Don Mills drove the 1981 Honda he was in off the road causing $6000 damage.

Gord was charged with the theft of the car and another youth, 16-year old Kevin H. Sack, of Willowdale was charged with theft of the car keys. Both youths were employed at the camp.

Gork and his passenger, Robert S. Kashin, 16, of Willowdale, received minor injuries.

The car was owned by David J. Barkin of Toronto, a cabin mate of Gork.

The matter was investigated by Constable Bob Pearson.

Avoid bear

Even police officers get in accidents, but in this case, you might say it was unavoidable.

Thursday evening around midnight on Highway 121, east of Minden, Boyd Jarvis, of Minden, an OPP officer, swerved his 1974 Volvo to avoid hitting a bear crossing the road.

His car struck a rockcut and rolled over. Damage was estimated at $3000.

Constable Dennis Potter investigated.

Charge laid

An 18-year old Minden man was unhurt but his three passengers were slightly injured in an accident that took place early last Thursday morning.

Ronald Wayne Yake, of Minden was driving a 1980 Chevette on Highway 121 near Ingoldsby when he lost control on a curve and the car rolled over.

Seventeen-year old Scott A. Arbuthnot 18-year old Brett Austin, both of Minden and 18-year old Arthur B. Stromberg of Anson Township were treated at Minden Red Cross Hospital for minor injuries.

Yake has been charged with impaired driving.

Investigation was by Constable Bob Pearson.

$3000 damage

A Port Perry man's motorcycle collided with a car last Thursday causing a total of $3000 damage.

Michael R. Lake, 26, was trying to pass a 1978 Oldsmobile driven by Judith A. Zeilig, 36, of Toronto when Zeilig started to turn off Highway 35, north of Minden.

Lake and his passenger, 34-year old Michael McClean, of Port Perry were thrown over the car and were taken to Minden Red Cross Hospital.

Zeilig was charged with making an unsafe turn and Lake was charged with not having a proper driver's licence.

Constable Boyd Jarvis investigated.

Memories of County pioneers - a tribute

by Sue Scott

The rich history of Haliburton County lies in the people who settled the land. The United Empire Loyalists, English, Scottish, Irish and Europeans. These are families who took a chance in a new, unfamiliar territory and whose names should not be forgotten because of their dedication and hopes for prosperity in their wilderness home.

One of the most historic places in any community is the cemetery, a place where the memory of early pioneers is preserved forever and where history lives on.

People with names such as Austin, Buck, Lucas, Sawyer, Welch, Hewitt and Kellett, to single out a few, each contributed to the development of the sparse terrain.

Many of them were attracted by the relative openness, the challenge to stake a claim and to work for themselves in the strange place which was part of Upper Canada.

Minden and Dysart et al townships were surveyed in 1858 and 1859, respectively, and it was not long after that the first settlers came.

The earliest colonization road, the Bobcaygeon, facilitated much of the northward movement with the choicest properties being along or near the Gull River.

The Noice, Prentice and Wright families arrived in 1858 when the only building in Minden was a log cabin, located near the present-day bridge. Most of the rest of the area was swamp.

Since there was no bridge at the time, John Noice and his family travelled by ferry to settle on their farm six miles north of the village.

Long hours

These were the years when roads were being built, trapping, lumbering and clearing the land, worked men long hours.

A gentleman named Daniel Buck is said to have been Minden's first hotel owner. In actual fact, his establishment lay in Anson township, probably near the present Dominion Hotel.

In 1863, Minden township had its first hotel which was owned by Benjamin Sawyer.

However, Buck was by far the best known and liked character in the county for many years. He and his wife were friendly and hospitable to the numerous travellers, loggers and trappers who frequented Buck's Hotel.

After his death, the business was passed to his son, John and later to Dan, Jr. Dan Buck, Sr. is buried in Minden's cemetery and tradition has it that the spring he died it was so wet, as soon as his resting place was excavated, it filled with water.

When the burial took place, the coffin had to be heaped with heavy stones to hold it down, bringing the career of Minden's hotel keeper to a liquid conclusion.

Unfortunately, the original building was destroyed by the devastating fire of 1890 but another was built by the then owner, James Thompson.

Minden's first storekeeper was Thomas Young, an emigrant from Wiltshire, England, who, with his wife, Mary, saw the homesteading opportunity in the village and moved from their Lindsay settlement.

The 1890 fire wiped out the Anson side of Minden village and it was rebuilt to include Alfred Palmer's harness shop, Eastman's millinery and fancy goods store, J. H. Delamere's printing shop, Ed Noice's general store and Dr. Charles Curry's drug store, where Newell and McInerney Real Estate is now located.

John Welch, from Dorset, England, held two important positions in Minden. He was the first undertaker and also operated a blacksmith shop.

The second occupation was invaluable during the time when transport depended on horses and a smith had to be adept at making everything from a needle to an anchor, various household items as well as horseshoes. It is reported that Welch made his own coffins.

Tourist potential

A man who might have been one of the earliest initiators of a Chamber of Commerce, John Robertson, was a great believer in the potential of Haliburton County as a tourist area.

Robertson, a Scotch Presbyterian, his wife and their nine children came to Minden in the early 1870's.

A grandson, George, who married a woman named Georgina Holland, the daughter of one of Dysart's early settlers, James, built one of the first resorts in the area, the "Northern Eagle".

Other grandchildren, Hazel and Holly Robertson started Wig-A-Mog Inn, later owned by Mervin Robertson.

Robertson was among the builders of Bethel's historic, "Church in the Wildwood" along with James Nesbitt, William Hogg, John Thomas and Joseph Cox. Several of the Cox's are buried in the Bethel cemetery. The earliest burial there was Johnathon Cox, who died at nine months.

Many of Minden's pioneers are buried in the town's cemetery including John Coulter, Walter Welch, Leon Stamp, John Kernohan, James Fairfield and several members of the Hewitt, Hogg, Cox, Hughes, Trumbull and Snell families.

Haliburton's Evergreen cemetery possesses such prominent names as Austin, Curry, Johnson, Sawyer, Kellett and Elstone and the country's resident surveyor, Alexander Niven.

David Sawyer, the brother of Benjamin, Minden's hotel owner, came from Pennsylvania and was a farmer near a lake named after him, Sawyer's, now Soyer's Lake.

During the 1950's, the foundations of Sawyer's cabin were unearthed when some bulldozing was being done at a cottage near the site.

Today, some of his descendants still live in various parts of Haliburton County.

James Holland, for whom Holland's Lake is named, and his sister, Mariam, moved to Kashagawigamog Lake in 1860. She holds the distinction as the first woman to settle on property bought by the Canadian Land and Immigration Company.

She married James Buck, Dan's brother in 1865 and the couple lived near the mill at Buck's Slide.

Epidemic

The year 1888 brought a severe diphtheria epidemic and James Buck was one of its victims. He is also buried in Minden.

After it was surveyed in 1859, Dysart township attracted such families as the Stotharts, Roberts, Murrays, Lucas and the Thompsons.

Steve Thompson moved to the village of Haliburton in 1864 with his family. He was the brother of George, author of "Life of a Lumberman."

Steve Thompson operated a freight business with two flat bottomed boats and a skiff which carried passengers, mail and supplies up the lakes until 1866.

His home is the oldest structure in the town today and several years after his death, his son visited the house and said it looked just as his father had described it.

1867 was the year of Dysart's incorporation as a municipality and the man who became reeve by acclamation was John Lucas.

An enterprising man, Lucas founded an early landmark, the Grand Central Hotel. A captain in the Mercantile Marine, and he also operated a saw mill on Drag Lake with William Gainer and William Ritchie.

One of his granddaughters, Mrs. Elwood Austin lived for many years in the house Lucas' son built in 1907, the first in the area to have carbide gas and a "modern" bathroom.

Another of Haliburton's hotels, the Queen's, where the present liquor store now stands, was first owned by an Irishman, Robert McKelvey in the 1860's.

He married Martha Kellett, sister of Douglas, who eventually took over the Queen's Hotel.

Douglas Kellett was an Englishman who had various careers in logging, farming and an innkeeper at the original Buck's Hotel.

Today Haliburton County has twenty-three townships but previous to the county's inception, twenty of the townships were attached to the County of Peterborough and three to Victoria County which in 1863 separated from Peterborough.

The first municipality formed in what now constitutes the Provisional County of Haliburton included the townships of Snowdon, Minden, Anson, Lutterworth and Galway, now part of Victoria County.

In 1860, Charles Austin, the son of a United Empire Loyalist, was elected reeve.

Austin was the ancestor of many of the Austins now living in the county. He is buried in Evergreen cemetery on the Harburn Road.

First minister

Haliburton's first Presbyterian minister was a man by the name of William Reeve in 1872.

The town's building committee needed $900 for a new church but the people improvised until its completion by holding services in the town hall.

Dysart was a bustling area of two hundred and seventy-six people by 1866 and there is even a record at the animal (more on page 8)

Marker of one of Minden's first settlers. The Fairfield family were unfortunate victims of the diphtheria epidemic of 1886.

Doug is a summer resident in the Highlands and lives during the winter months in Southern California. Report of little value: councillor

The value of a six month financial report prepared for the members of Anson, Hindon and Minden Township council was called into question Wednesday at the regular meeting. Councillor Ed. Pergolas said the council needed a more precise report of the municipality's financial standing if they were to make any sort of judgement on how the community stood.

"We're inundated with reports," said Pergolas. "What we need is something simpler."

The councillors were given the report a few weeks earlier in anticipation of a discussion of its contents. Councillor Pergolas was the only member of the council to speak out on the matter.

The report showed that during the first six months of this year, the township had spent $851,556. Income was recorded at $839,261.

Pergolas said that while the report gave an aggregate figure for expenditures such as wages, there was no indication how that amount was shared by each department.

The councillors commented in particular on the roads department. "There is a half million dollar budget for roads," he stated. "It is a heck of a problem trying to figure out what it is all about."

Pergolas suggested that the council devise a simpler method of preparing the statements. He said the document before them was of little value because it was so hard to understand and did not really reveal any precise details about the municipality's operation. He said he would help to draft a form that would be easier to understand.

The councillor's comments about the complexity of the statement seemed to be echoed by the silence of the others around the table.

Council ponders lane closing

The road between the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and the Welch building may be closed to public use, but Anson, Hindon and Minden council will talk it over with the board of directors of the BIA before making a decision.

A letter from Gary Vasey, president of Jeacar Holdings, requesting the closure, was read at last week's meeting.

"It's going to be closed sometime for development," said by-law officer, Dick Schell.

Vasey didn't state exactly what his plans were to council and councillor Lyle McKnight observed that Vasey isn't saying he won't reopen the road.

"He's leaving the option open," said McKnight.

Council agreed the road is somewhat of a safety hazard.

Schell and McKnight said people don't think of it as a thoroughfare.

"I'd rather come out of that street than Peck street," said reeve, Lloyd Walker.

"There's much more traffic on Peck," added Schell.

It was councillor Larry Cummins who raised the question of the BIA's involvement.

Councillor Ed Pergolas, council's representative on the committee said the BIA also want the road closed but he agreed to talk it over with them.

Hustlers lead series 1 - 0

The Rockcliffe Hustlers and Lindsay Peterborough Lumber Juniors provided a thrilling game of baseball Wednesday August 12 during the opening game of play-offs. The local squad secured a toe hold on the best of three series with a 2-1 win over the visitors.

The Hustlers opened the scoring in the first inning on a walk to Dave Dollo, Jack Snell bunted and Dollo came home on a single by Gene Newell. The Juniors tied it in the second on a home run by the pitcher Wayne Wells.

In the second inning, Harris Steele got to first on a bunt then Colin Newell bunted and Steele scored on a wild throw. This set the stage for a really thrilling game as both teams threatened but failed to score for the remainder of the game. Winning pitcher was Snell, while Wells took the loss.

The series continued Thursday evening of this week, too late for a report in this edition. The teams take to the field again tonight, Wednesday, if a third game is necessary, at the Minden diamond. Game time is 8 o'clock.

A reminder as well of the tournament this weekend in Minden. Fourteen teams will be in town to take part in the Rockcliffe Hotel Invitational. The action starts Friday evening at 7 o'clock with the Minden team facing the Haliburton entry. Fenelon Falls meets Newmarket at 8:30. Games continue throughout the weekend at the diamond.

Ladies start play-offs

The play-offs have began in the Haliburton County Ladies' Softball league games as the season winds down.

In series A play-offs, Haliburton defeated West Guilford by the score of 11-10. Pam Iles hit two home runs for Haliburton. Nancy Maugham was the winning pitcher while Joan McKay took the loss.

The next game is tonight, (August 19) at 7:00 in Haliburton.

In series B, Minden's Dixie Lee-Homestead was triumphant over Stanhope by an eight to two margin.

Joan Paul got a home run for Minden in the game. The winning pitcher was Nelda Culley and Marg Darby took the loss.

The next game is scheduled for Thursday evening in Minden, starting at 7:30.

Volunteer Friendly visiting is a supportive program which utilizes a volunteer to relieve the loneliness of individuals who feel isolated from the outside world due to some disability or old age.

The friendly visitor may provide basic companionship to the isolated and may perform certain tasks such as reading, talking, listening, and writing letters. The friendly visitor helps the isolated to maintain contact with the outside world.

If you need such a visit, or if you wish to provide the service, please call the Haliburton County Home Support Services, 457-2941.

Council briefs

Items from the August 12 meeting of Anson, Hindon and Minden Township Council.

Lease renewal

Anson, Hindon and Minden council have decided to renew its lease on the government dock in Minden for five years.

The current lease had run from 1978 and expires on September 1.

Township clerk, Elinor Burke, said the township did not lease the dock before 1978 because repairs and maintenance were not covered in the agreement but the new agreement would include such provisions.

The new lease starts in September at an extra rental cost of $100 per year.

Change of auditor

Although a new municipal auditor has not been appointed, Anson, Hindon and Minden have fired their current firm of MacGillivray and Company.

A resolution dismissing the auditors was passed at last week's meeting of council.

The firm will be notified that their services won't be required after the completion of the 1980 financial report.

Payment made

The firm of Doug Tedford Contracting will receive a $1,000 interim payment for work done on the interior of the new Library Cultural Centre.

The payment was granted at council last week and is described as "relative to the interior finishing" of the log building.

Tedford, Gino Ziorjen and J. Calverley were present at the meeting and before the announcement was made, council held a brief closed door session to discuss the matter.

Ezra Lott displays the ticket that won him $1000 on last week's Wintario draw. Ezra, a resident of Extendicare, was extremely pleased with his good fortune and says he plans to put the money in the bank.

And time for a seat in the sun;
Aye, it's good to watch the world go by
When all your work is done.

It's good we have eyelids that close at a touch to keep out an insect or sun that's too much. Why don't we have earlids for thunder and such?

Bye for now. Take it easy. God Bless till next time.

This week's activities began with our regular fun and fitness program. Everyone enjoyed a game of darts and exercised their bodies to music.

In the afternoon the ladies made their way to the craft room to work on their projects. Ted Carr is continuing his woodworking and is doing a mighty fine job.

Tuesday morning Rev. Everett Wicks held an inspiring service in the Chapel. Agnes Taylor played the organ for the singing of gospel hymns.

After lunch several residents enjoyed three very interesting movies which were on loan from Haliburton Library. Me and Sam McGee was a story of a young girl and her dog Sam McGee who were travelling from Dawson City to Whitehorse by water. The film presented by Parks Canada took us to Discovery Days in Dawson City and also to Yukon where it is a haven for many species of wild-life.

Niagara showed us the Niagara Falls, one of the most famous natural spectacles in the world.

We saw the attractions at Fort Erie and Fort George and Niagara Falls. Everyone enjoyed the visit to Marineland, the Maid of the Mist and Garden City Raceway.

Yukon Getaway Country was all about the Yukon Territories, better known as the land of the midnight sun. This unspoiled country is a fisherman's paradise and the home of the moose. Everyone thoroughly enjoyed their afternoon at the movies.

Wednesday evening, Bob Penfold and the student helpers were here for games night. Everyone enjoyed games of cribbage, euchre and crokinole. We would like to thank the helpers for continuing to come to Hyland Crest during the summer months. The residents enjoy their company and look forward to their visits.

Thursday afternoon it was a pleasure to welcome Maple Lake Anglican Church Women to serve at the weekly tea party. The ladies served a delicious variety of squares, cake, tea breads and cheese. The afternoon was topped off with a few toe-tapping tunes played by Ray Jenkins on the piano. Our thanks to all these people for a most enjoyable tea party.

The week's activities came to a close with Grace Coburn leading the sing song on Friday afternoon. We sang some old favorite hymns and songs and enjoyed the organ music played by Fred Ballard.

BIRTHS

CHISOLM - God Bless the safe arrival of Steven Thomas. Greeted by his happy parents, Murray and Charlene (McIntosh), on August 8, 1981 at Brantford General Hospital. He's a big boy weighing 5 lbs., 11 oz. His grandparents are Harvey and Blanche McIntosh of Minden and Eva Chisolm of Sebright.

CARD OF THANKS

My sister and I would like to thank all those who came to our aid last Friday afternoon. The gentle and efficient ambulance attendants, the Dr. and nurses at the hospital and last but by no means least P.C. Connelley who contacted my sister's husband, brought him into town, and then drove us to our respective homes. Sincere thanks to all.
